Governor Toole Finds Five Certificates Designed as a Trap for the Democrats.

A Scheme of the Conspirators That Failed to Work as Was

What the House of Representatives Did Testerday-The Silver Bow Frauds to be Shaken Up To-Day.

Intended.

The most important political find of the season was made yesterday by Gov. Toole, While looking through his desk he found a bunch of papers which, as examination revealed, were left over by his predecessor, Gov. White. They were five state election certificates, made out in proper form and ready for delivery, with the exception of the governor's signature. The certificates bore the names of Senator-elect Daniel J. Hennessy and Representatives Joseph K. Clark, H. L. Frank, William J. Penrose, William H. Roberts and Leo R. Schmidt, all democrats from Silver Bow. These papers were signed by ex-Secretary of State Walker. They had evidently been stowed away to be delivered at the pleasure of the ex-governor. There is little doubt that they were never intended to be given to the men entitled to them. In the first place, mark the coincidence. Out of seventy-one members of the legislature all received state certificates except five men. These men were democrats from Silver Bow county legally elected as members of the legislature. The fact that these men alone were neglected gives very good ground for suspicion that ex-Gov. White was the head of a conspiracy to put the democrats in a trap. There are two theories: First, that when Senator Hennessy, of Silver Bow, came to take his seat at the organization of the senate, in the event that both parties organized that body the republicans would capture the temporary organization by declaring that he was not qualified to his seat because of his failure to present a state election certificate. Another course might have been taken. The certificates were to be held back until the men applied for them. Upon the refusal of the governor to give the certificate, it was expected that the men would secure a writ of mandamus compelling the issuing of the certificates, and that it would be readily granted by Chief-Justice Blake. The democrats would then put themselves in the position of recognizing the necessity of these certificates in order to take their seats. Thus a precedent would be established for the action of the republican canvassing board in declaring the legality of their certificates alone. The action of the democrats assumed the republican position regarding the state certificates. This deep laid scheme, another of Sander's mental productions, fell through by the determined stand of the democrats. The Silver Bow members had no more use for these documents for legislature purposes than the New Jersey representatives. The governor's discovery gives further proof of the determined stand of the republican leaders to steal the election and to use every criminal means for that purpose that could be invented by unscrupulous men. men entitled to them. In the first place, mark the coincidence. Out of seventy-one

The supreme court judges have more than ordinary interest in the outcome of the present legislative muddle. According to the chief justice there is no provision of law enabling them to appoint the terms to be held during the coming year. The legislature must provide means for these appointments, but as there is a dead lock the work of the supreme court comes to a stand still. Beyond hearing a few cases in chambers the judges can do nothing, not even draw their salaries. So far as pay goes they are on the same basis as the other The supreme court judges have more than terday morning was the report of the committee on credentials. Messrs. Frank Mc-Eiwee and Maley who composed the committee announced that from all information in their possession the republican members of the house barring the Silver Bow contestants were entitled to admission and would be received and enrolled as soon as they qualified. This is construed as a cordial invitation to the rightful representa-tives to depart from the crooked path of conspiracy enter the house of representa-tives and set the wheels of degislation mov-ing.

There was a rumor on the street last evening that Secretary of State Blaine had sent a telegram to the republican leaders in this city asking them to send the rumps to the house of representatives and thus recognize Gov. Toole's position as to the legality of the house. As no source to the rumor could be found it was undoubtedly a canard. It would be a matter of surprise if a partisan of unscrupulous methods like Mr. Blame would advise these misled men to turn to would advise these misled men to turn to the right. It would be looked upon as a matter of policy rather than principle.

A dispatch states that Senator C. J. McNamars will be here from Fort Maginnis to-day. He is still lame but his interest in the democratic success in the present controversy brings him to the battle ground.

the republican leaders will be unfolded and the democratic position plainly stated. The galleries will undoubtedly be filled with inrested spectators.

The republican senators held their cos-tomary meeting yesterday morning. The quorum was present and the senators were about to adjourn when Senator Fisher

"Mr. President: Again we have met here for the performance of our duties, and again we are confronted with the fact that here is no quorum present. Once more he democratic members are absent from heir seats. We assembled here at the hour and the place named in the governor's proclamation and in that much have shown our disposition to be reasonable. Our democratic colleagues were elected by their democratic colleagues were elected by their constituents to perform an important and high duty. But they persist in absenting themselves continually and by their refusal to come in and assist to organize this senate they are trampling under foot the rights of the people and the laws of the state. They are blocking the machinery of legislation, and if we should have to adjourn in ninety days from now no laws will be passed for the next three years. The judiciary will suffer likewise. No criminal presentation can be properly had and our criminals would be turned a loose upon the communities and order would be turned into chaos. Mr. President, the democratic members are denying you of your right privilege to convene this body.

the democratic members are denying you right privilege to convene this body, a knowing that no means exist to bring them to the senate chamber until they have taken their oaths. I presume among eight men there would be at least one good one whose conscience would bid him do the duty he owes his electors. But it seems not one good man can be found among them. No blame can rest upon the republican members for the existing state of affairs. Mr. President, I make these remarks in order to tell the people at whose door the blame must lie.

The senator's speech produced no visible effect. The immediate adjournment seemed to indicate that the members were glad when it was finished. When the senator proposed to tell the people at whose door the blame must lie he should explain that the deadlock was brought on and continued by men gathered for the purpose of cheating people out of their rights and defrauding representatives out of their honestly won seats.

DISCONSOLATE RUMPS.

No One to Pray for Them and the Outlook a Dreary One.

The rumps had a fair sized audience yesterday afternoon when they met at 2 o'clock. Sanders was in the lobby, accompanied by his friend, Gen. Lester S. Willson, of Bozeman. Senator Hedges came in shortly after Witter got his aggregation in order. Bernard was there, gazing around with a complacent smile at the members. The proceedings were opened without prayer, the chaplain-elect having declined to do any praying for the the rumps.
